

English grammar for translators 1

Prof. Leszek Berezowski

The lecture covers a range of grammatical topics which are significant for translators but are usually not much discussed in standard grammar classes, e.g. atypical uses of English tenses, modal verbs, causative verbs and negations. The lecture focuses on the practical significance of such constructions for the translator and finding their Polish equivalents. For each class there is presentation to be circulated to the students beforehand.